SPARK PLUG

A teacher is a parent in school and a parent is a teacher at home. As simple as that! Nothing more, Nothing less. However the significance of the above statement is immense as it defines their future. You've heard the old saying "it takes a village to raise a child". When it comes to their education, the same logic and principle is applied in the form of a positive and proactive partnership between teachers, student and parents.

I'm a huge advocate for clear and open communication to ensure effective relationships between teachers and parents for the best outcome of the child.

Parents and teachers have them for each other. They expect certain things to happen. Parents expect teachers to instruct their students and to guide their learning so they can have success. Teachers expect parents to support the instruction and learning that happens in school, at home. They have expectations for their student's academic performance, attendance, and behavior both in school and out of school. If these expectations are the same and they are communicated, a synergy happens, and their relationship has a powerful effect on the student's learning outcomes.

So dear parents, let's join hands and work towards creating happy childhood memories for our little ones!

LEARNING CURVE

“Education is a most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.”

----- APJ. Abdul Kalam

Our little munchkins were encouraged to power their logical skills by identifying the characteristics of circles and squares. Learners enthusiastically shared the real-time objects like book, clock, box, ball, window, etc for the shapes.

In addition to that, the children enacted the real time situations and expresses their feelings and emotions like happy, sad, scared, excited, crying, angry.

Parent chronicles

Dear Ma'am,

It has given us immense pleasure and joy to take part in the 'Reading Monday' event this week. It gave us an opportunity to spend time and interact with all the wonderful kids. This experience gave us a new insight and added yet another dimension to parenting. We thank you and look forward to more such beautiful moments.

Pocket Phonics

“In our language arts instruction, we have taken a balance approach to literacy with strong focus on phonics”

----- Ray Morgan

Phonics lays the foundation for learning letters. Phonics is a method of teaching children to read by linking sounds and the symbols that represent them. During brainstorming the children come up with /n/ sound words like nest, nail, neck, necklace, nut, friends name and begin's with /n/. Our tiny tots enthusiastically participated in the activity for making necklace for /n/ sound.

Health and Beyond

The greatest wealth for a human being is having a good health. When it comes to kids their bodily activity and their smile keeps them and us healthy as well. Here is an activity where we include zumba into their and Dance and Music class to keep the kids healthy with their body and mind.

Being Healthy is a success that most people forget to celebrate. And the little things that we learn from this tiny humans is to smile, which is a greatest to be healthy.

Budding Influencer

“If you want to shine like a sun. First burn like a sun.”

---- APJ Abdul Kalam

Children enjoyed coming to school as they had great involvement in the hands-on activities which was done in class as a part of their learning. Taking one step ahead students were involved in daily activities which helped them to develop their skills.

Students were motivated to keep their belongings organized. They have started to exhibit their self-management skills through keeping their belongings in the places where they have to be kept. They also took initiative to arrange the library books in the bookshelf.

Celebrating the Universal
Language of love!

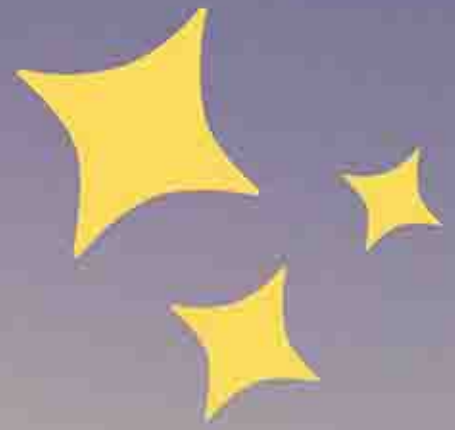

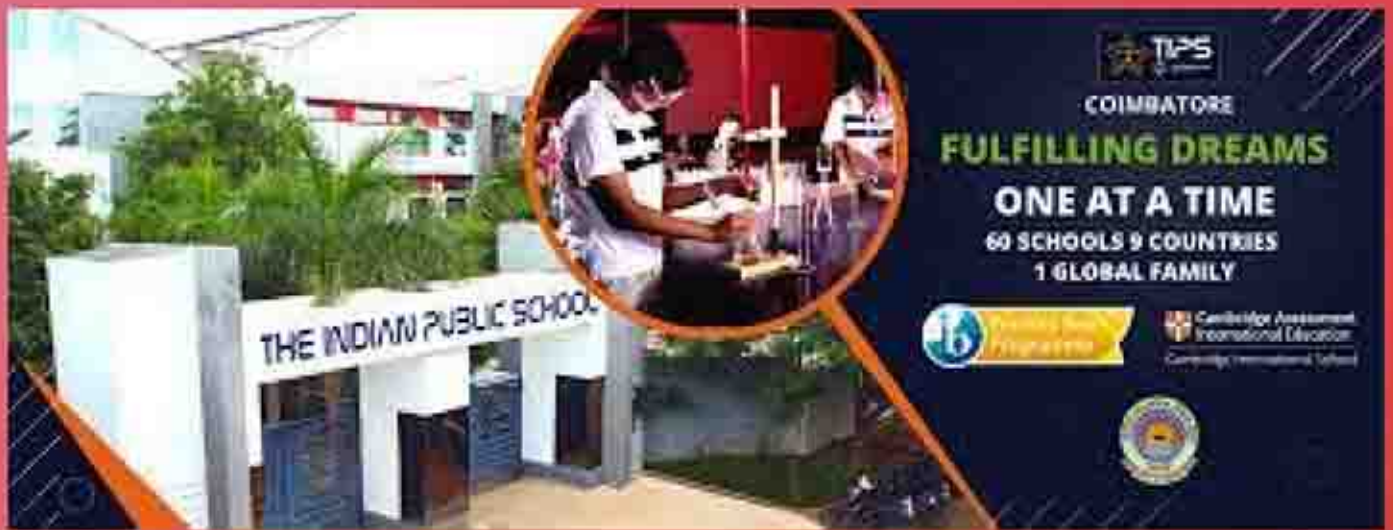

Undoubtedly music is the strongest type of magic. Regardless of age, we all love this beautiful form of art that transports us to another state of mind. As we celebrate this art, we had the famous singer and guitarist Alex Abraham to come and perform a little musical concert. Happy music, fun filled lyrics and the tunes were near perfection to set the place ablaze with excitement. Our KG children had a great time singing along to the notes.
